Land Link Meet-up

Thank you for your interest and support of our new, growing effort! We are working to bring together farmers who need land and people who own farmland that they would like used for organic production of vegetables and fruit for local consumption.

Landowners - please bring photos of your land if you have them, and come ready to describe the land you are offering. Think about the acreage available, soil quality if you know it, whether you would be willing to share your land with more than one farmer, whether you can provide water, etc.

Farmers - please come ready to describe your farming dreams and needs!

Our staff will bring model leases and a list of key questions that can be used to begin your conversations together. If people make connections that seem promising, their next step can be a farm visit together and then, we hope, collaborating to share land this season.

You are invited to a matchmaking event between Madison-area farmland owners and beginning organic farmers.
